Thank you for taking the time to read this Annual Report and your interest in our work. For all readers and our friends of the WSCF-Europe, I would describe the life of the organisation in 2016 with these words – a lot of commitment toward challenging times internally and with faith and ever searching spirit creating spaces for dialogue.

In 2016 we continued with our long term focus on internal organisational development – in areas of finances and communications. Projects in the field of communications and marketing covering – internal database development, digitalisation of archived materials, alumnae engagement activities and events, WSCF-Europe history book production and in the area of finances – regular giving system development and new sources of funding identification. Much of this work being done with wonderful dedication of Maria Kozhinova, Melany Bresciani and also Mirjam Meindl and other volunteers.

In our work for students, we continued with capacity building and educational activities. We ran our annual training focused on volunteer work management and continued to provide opportunities within WSCF-E for young people in various capacities. We have been once again able to include students from outside of Europe to our events – this time from the Middle East. Our key international event focused on important questions related to gender enabled us to reflect with wide student audience on identity issues that we want to confront with the searching mind. And our journal Mozaik has continued to be a stamp of the thoughts that students are bringing for discernment. Alongside all of this work, we are continuing to develop our new line of work-global networking where we are strengthening our connections and identity as the global organisation.

Our intersectionality geographically is very important and enriching for our work. Big thanks to Krista Autio for all her efforts and good cooperation with our colleagues and students in other parts of the world within our organisation. In the middle of the year, we organized the meeting for our Senior Friends-former members and supporters – it was a very refreshing moment to see the community of people and their belief in this work and very positive memories.

Internally, 2016 has been a challenging year as we have experienced unexpected income shortfall from our global headquarters and needed to adjust to it in the middle of the year and to intensify our efforts to mitigate this event. We are grateful to all people who assisted us financially and non financially to overcome this challenge. I am grateful to commitment to our board members – Clare Wilkins and Rachel Power who have shown a lot of care and responsibility. 2016 has made us resilient and showed much of strength we can find within ourselves and our networks too. Despite such an event, we were able to continue with much of the organisational commitments we made and delivered our work. My special gratitude always goes to Natia Tsintsadze who was the one from all of us for whom resiliency and impact that I talked about is related to and has been felt the most professionally and personally.

It has been an honour for me personally to continue to serve WSCF-Europe surrounded by many people who volunteer with kindness and generosity and by all people who support our work for justice and peace in all kinds of ways. Thank you to our long term institutional partners, our Regional Committee members for their time and gifts and all our friends who assisted us. Thank you for your trust and faith in continuing our work So that All may be One – Ut Omnes Unum Sint. Only together we make this happen.

Yours,
Zuzana,
WSCF-E Chairperson
Executive summary

Time to act! This sentence perfectly captures the dynamics within the Federation last year. Not only we had to take actions towards more sustainable and stable future of the Federation, but we had to play far greater and stronger role in the development processes in Europe.

Going through the transition processes last year was a challenging experience from the financial and organisational perspectives. But it presented us with the opportunities too. We learned lessons from our rich history which itself has been guiding us to stability, solidarity and unity. We have managed to be truthful to our values while remaining in the forefront of over 110 national movements across six regions.

With a forward-looking leadership team, clear vision and strategic planning we were able to strengthen the ties with and among our Student Christian Movements (SCMs) in Europe. We worked with other ecumenical organisations and developed new partnerships with stakeholders.

The right direction and strong leadership of the WSCF-Europe have been key drivers through this turbulent times. We believe that the organisation hasn’t only survived but came out stronger as ever. And here we stand with a clear vision for future, solid foundation of organisational experience and expertise to move forward.

Past year has also demonstrated our great potential and ability to contribute to the major development processes in Europe. We continue to serve our mission of putting our Christian faith into action, serve the most vulnerable and ensure just and peace for all. We live in a time when hope for a better future and fear interchangeably fill our daily lives. Struggle for equality, human rights and inclusion is as vital as ever in the face of growing radicalisation, racism and hate rhetoric in Europe. The authorities use fear for building the walls and closing the gates to hope, humanity and compassion which are our ultimate values.

In this reality our primary task and role was to stand up to hate, exclusion and discrimination. We had to support and guide our young people and contribute to restore the trust in humanity.

The WSCF-Europe has been engaged in several joint initiatives with the ecumenical and international organisations and took a strong position against the misconception and manipulation of immigration and diversity issues. As Christians we live in faith and faith always is the hope for better lives for everyone. Looking forward, in 2017 we continue to adhere to building stronger ecumenical network of students and young people in Europe and make a positive impact wherever we can.

6 / Our achievements

6.1 / Capacity-building and empowerment

Exploring our gifts, limits and capacities

One of the main focuses of our work is building capacity of our member movements and other active youth movements in Europe. This year, we have concentrated our capacity-building outreach on a training held in Norway on 3-6 March.

6.1.1 / Staff and Officers’ Meeting

Staff and Officers’ Meeting is an annual capacity-building training for all WSCF-Europe member movements and other European movements working with young people on similar issues. This year 22 representatives from 17 countries were invited to Oslo. The purpose of this event was building capacity of movements and facilitating networking between them. This year’s meeting focused on: communication via social media and on volunteers’ management and retention. These sessions were led by Director of Communication from World Council of Churches (WCC) Marianne Ejdersten, Web Coordinator of WCC Annegret Kapp, and a Senior Friend and experienced trainer François-David Freschi. The meeting was hosted by the Norwegian Student Christian Movement and funded by the European Commission.

We can learn that we can share Christian values even though we are different. It is better to see the common points than to argue on small theological debates. This is how we can better understand us, the society and the world.

 Searching for answers together

This study session has tackled the WSCF strategical objective Identity, Diversity and Dialogue and used capacity-building methodology to do so. 32 participants representing 20 different countries spent a week together for the Study Session “Let’s talk about sexuality: The explosive Power of Taboo Subjects” at the European Youth Centre in Budapest between 9th and 14th of May 2016. The Study Session gathered people from diverse backgrounds creating intercultural and ecumenical environment where everyone had a chance to express their opinion in a safe space. Creating a safe space had an important role as the topic was so sensitive.

Throughout the week the main issues that were presented are: what is a taboo subject? How to start unwrapping these topics? Are there some taboos that should remain taboos? Are we having troubles even saying the word sexuality? Have we already started talking about marginalised groups, sexual orientation, etc? The non-formal education methodology used allowed participants on the one hand to participate more in their own learning by guiding their own discussions and introducing their own topics and on the other hand to enhance their own learning beyond cognitive.

The invited guests brought their own expertise to the discussion. Dr Konstantinos Kenanidis and Dr Renato Lings presented a biblical, theological and ecclesiological perspective approach on sexuality and sexual orientation during a panel discussion and representatives of local organisations from Budapest that deal with the topics related to the Study Session, Rena Katona and Daniel Holländer, familiarized the participants of the study session with the Hungarian context. Rena Katona from Ars Erotica led a workshop concerning sexual education and Daniel Holländer gave a talk about the Rainbow Foundation and Pride event in Budapest providing insights on governmental decisions in Hungary.

During the week participants discovered that there are different kinds of taboos for different people and what may be a taboo topic for some maybe a widely accepted discussion/reality for others. For some, own community or church doesn’t want to talk about sexuality much, so even the word sexuality is more or less a taboo. For others, own community or church might be already talking about how to handle same-sex marriage. Recognising this as a challenge may open up for further discussions and offer more possibilities to initiate dialogue. Therefore, this Study Session succeeded in raising awareness of the topic of sexuality overall. Also, the Study Session offered a platform for open and honest discussion, mainly due to the safe space that was created in the European Youth Centre and it is still lasting in a Facebook group of the participants, where they share articles and other relevant material. During the final day, participants created their own action plans fitted to the needs of their own community or church.

The Study Session also fostered reconnection of the participants coming from various member organisations with the core structures (both WSCF-Europe and EYCE are umbrella organisations). The Study Session was a good platform to develop better understanding and cooperation between the two organisations as well as to foster personal connections between the staff members. The areas of expertise of the two organisations were expanded through involvement with the theme.

For myself – as a Christian Middle Eastern from an Orthodox background – to attend a session about sexuality, it was interesting and challenging experience at the same time. Interesting as we were youth from different Christian backgrounds coming from various countries worldwide, seeking to share, listen and learn about sexuality, while challenging as in our region, the sexuality topic is one of the very sensitive taboos that can be hardly highlighted in either our societies or our churches.

I believe that ‘the best to learn from about the other is the other her/himself’; we can learn about the other through books, documentaries etc., but the best is to encounter the other and share your questions, concerns and points of clarifications through a healthy and balanced ecumenical platform where we – youth from different backgrounds and cultures – can start from this wonderful experience to examine, and this what we had found in this seminar.

Mainly, the study session highlighted the LGBTQI+ issue as one of the contemporary challenges in our global age on various levels; socially, culturally, politically and religiously, as the fact of the presence of this community is not even recognized (at least officially) on many international agendas in many countries worldwide. WSCF-E helped us to open the floor about this issue on the Christian level as an ethical and theological challenge that should be discussed, as this took place through presented lectures from theologians that belong to both traditional and non-traditional Christian backgrounds to raise our questions about what the bible says and how we can consider the bible text today in a world that is dominated by globalization and modernization. We had had working groups where we could put on the floor the conclusions we reached and the still-raised questions we need to answer through our seminar, as we – at the end of the day through an evaluating time with the seminar coordinators – shared the positives/negatives points and also suggestions for the following days respectively.

We learnt new terms (at least for my ears) about various sexual orientation issues that had never been mentioned in our society, to the extent we didn’t even know about their existence, that gave more tools to go through this topic and explore deeper dimensions rather than the surface ones our societies use to present when real questions are raised – especially from younger generations – about it. It broadened the scope and highlights how big and complicated the case is.

Frankly, many concepts and ideas that were displayed through the seminar were very familiar to the participants, but for myself they required some time to be considered and examined, and this created a challenging path to run rapidly for catching the normal flow of the program. This payed my attention that I need to receive some fundamental information about sexuality.

It was also great opportunity to meet the WSCF senior friends where I could meet people I met in the 35th General Assembly of WSCF in Bogota, Colombia and exchange some memories and experiences in various issues concerning the WSCF and the ecumenical movement.

At the end, I would like to mark this unique experience that I use to mention when this topic is raised in my daily life and how wealthy it was, also would like to say that although the seminar was nearly for one week, but more time was needed to cover extra perspectives of this sensitive issue, as many questions were still raised and opened discussions had not yet fulfilled. These seminars are not expected to solve all the problems and face all the challenges that the world faces today about sexuality but it lights a red lamp in our board that dealing with it could not be finalised with few verses without considering the recent global change that requires more academic studies on various levels, also opened minds and hearts with bended knees to God to ask Him for guidance and wisdom by the grace of the Holy Spirit.

Senior Friends of WSCF-Europe travelled from various countries in Europe to meet in May 2016 in Budapest with their fellows and catch up with the life of the organization they used to be involved in all kinds of ways in the past. WSCF-Europe was happy to facilitate this meeting and to organize it in conjunction with a student conference. This was with our intention to bring both students and former members together in shared intellectual and spiritual spaces. The meeting itself has a history in WSCF-Europe and the previous one happened in Austria, in 2009. WSCF Europe wants to renew and establish a tradition of Senior Friends gathering and this meeting was the very start of it or rather the continuation of it. At this meeting the group spent the time renewing memories of what it was that brought them to volunteer and be engaged in WSCF-E and what they enjoyed. Another substantial part has been reporting of past few years internal developments to participants engaging them in analysing and understanding how the organisation has been going forward and factors influencing the work. The second part of the meeting was dedicated to visioning how this group of interested people would like to continue – what type of meetings and communication channels could be established for the future. What the group put together was also our prayer and spiritual time which was created by the group for themselves. The planning committee was composed of the current Chair (Zuzana Babicova) and former Chair (Sofie Eriksen), former Treasurer (Markus Ojakoski) and other former European Regional committee members – Vera Papp and David Cleary who were helping to prepare this event.

Markus Ojakoski (Finland)
“We need organizations like WSCF more than ever. I was really happy I am not alone with this thought.”

Daniel Bonniot de Ruisselet (France/Hungary)
“In our sharing session it came back with a striking unanimity how much we all missed the WSCF Spirit: intellectual stimulation, safe space to share and live our differences, spiritual home even for those not always completely fitting in established churches, community experience.”

Sofie Bonde Eriksen (Denmark)

6.2 Organizational development

In 2016, WSCF-E Regional Committee has been focusing on three internal organizational development areas: finances, staff team structure and communications.

Financial development

In terms of finances, the main focus was on enhancing financial solidarity by building new financial income streams. WSCF-Europe aims to be in solidarity with other WSCF regions in order to ease the budget of the global Federation, so that common resources can be used for other causes and internal needs in more vulnerable regions, especially in Africa and Latin America.

This year we have developed the first regular donations system in WSCF-Europe that shall bring financial resources in the coming years. We have also developed a crowdfunding campaign to raise funds for publishing the complete history of WSCF-E by 2019 (see more under Communication Strategy Development). Our contribution to the global WSCF office (IRO) was supporting it partially with our professional human resources. The highlight of our financial development work is securing for the second consecutive year the funding in the amount of 11 600 euro - for the year 2017.

Structural staff team development

Our vision is to form a professional staff team working together with volunteers, who adds a professional know-how in their areas of expertise to WSCF-Europe work throughout the year. In 2016 we engaged with half-dozen volunteers assisting us with professional skills (website development, coaching, fundraising consultancy, photography and pastoral care). We have also launched an ongoing "register your skills" initiative to build up our pro bono reserves from our own members and former members.
Communication strategy development

Communications and publications were another important area of organizational development this year. Our main area of development this year was building up our online presence, and raising the bar for quality content published on our website and social media. We have strived to improve both the visual and the content parts of our materials, which has resulted in a lot of positive feedback from our audience. We have involved more resources in developing our monthly newsletter, with a bigger team working on its development and testing new ideas.

Our journal Mozaik has continued on as an important part of our traditional print communication, this year dedicated to politics, religion and the topic of multiculturalism. We brought Mozaik a step further and digitized all issues starting from 1992, which can now be accessed by all audiences at any time.

Furthermore, we have launched a crowdsourcing history project of WSCF-Europe, which aims at creating a publication to share our history. The objective of this project is to access WSCF archives in Yale University and to collect together institutional information on WSCF-Europe since its regionalisation in 1969. The Yale archives exist largely only in paper form. We aim at producing a comprehensive record of our fifty-year history, remembering the people who made this organisation what it is, and acknowledging the contribution we made to Christian life in Europe. Due to numerous office and staff moves, a big share of this information was lost over decades. In late 2016, we started a wide crowdfunding campaign to raise funds for collecting relevant materials in Yale, digitizing them, and publishing the complete history of WSCF-E by our 50th anniversary in 2019. Communicating the past and the legacy of our movement in print form and online will be a key component of our external communication priorities in the upcoming years.

One of the largest projects of the year was to develop an internal contact database to understand the scope of how and when WSCF people were involved in the life and development of the region. The database team has put together over 1100 contacts of active WSCF people from the last 25 years, which is a tremendous resource for the current WSCF-E team for both advisory and legacy reasons. At the same time, we have been working on digitization of over 10,000 pages of archived materials, covering the years 1980–2010.

Another large-scale initiative was engaging WSCF-Europe supporters and alumnae in the life of the region. We have launched a Register as WSCF-E Friend registry, with almost 100 people registered throughout 2016. For this audience we have developed a community program: production of a quarterly Newsletter for registered Friends of WSCF-E; a closed Facebook group for this community; and also organizing a 2-day event for Friends of WSCF-Europe in Budapest in May 2016. We strive to engage more alumni in our activities, and we will continue to develop the Friends initiative in 2017.

6.3 / Our students in action

In spring 2016, the Finnish Lutheran Movement Sky ran a writing contest “Stories of faith.” It invited students to write stories about the importance of faith in their own surroundings and everyday life. The stories also brought forward the voices of those who usually remain on the margin of society. The stories highlighted students in different life situations and encouraged young people to reflect on the importance of faith in the joys and sorrows of life. The jury consisted of a book critic and blogger Minna Jaakkola, journalist-writer Sari Pullinen and expert-non-fiction writer Juha Luodeslampi. The competition aimed at everyone from the age of 18–35. The winner received a €200 cash prize. Second and third place participants won a one-year subscription for SKY’s own Etsijä-magazine.

In April 2016, SCM Sweden arranged a retreat at the Sigtuna Foundation refuge close to Stockholm. The theme of the retreat was: “Curiosity” and the participants had rich opportunities to try out new ways to nurture our relationship with God. The activities offered included: drawing, painting, reading, long walks and contemplative prayer. Mass and Worship Services were celebrated in a beautiful chapel cut out from the bedrock at the side of a hill. The retreat was arranged in cooperation with the University Chaplains in the Diocese of Stockholm.
In July, our Italian movement Federazione Giovanile Evangelica in Italia organized a seminar about communication “Scusa, puoi ripetere?” (“Excuse me, can you repeat?”). The seminar discussed the importance of maintaining an active dialogue in an intercultural church. The Federation underlined the increasingly multicultural composition of our churches and our gatherings; the importance of multilingualism for the personal growth of our membership and how these enrich our discussions. We also recognize the importance of continuing to use Italian as the main language in FGEI, this means we need to do all to ensure the facilitation of the learning for non native speakers. The event was the second part of an ongoing project about communication FGEI is currently undertaking.

Armenian SCM, Youth Union of Jervezh, organized a 3-day camp in July in the National Park of Dilijan. The aim of the project was to promote an environmentally friendly lifestyle, to experience sustainable tourism, and to support the conservation of flora and fauna. Participants also had a small trekking-pilgrimage to Aghavnavanq Monastery which was hidden in the forest and made some cleansing works in the area as well as made a donation to families in need of Aghavnqavanq village. All 20 participants of this activity were the members of Jervezh Youth Union. The project was beneficial both for the members of the camp, and for the residents of the village.
“Forbundshelga” is an annual retreat for SCMers from all over Norway. Over the weekend, they participated in discussions and workshops on a given topic and also had some organizational training. This year the topic was “Radical and justice-based following of Christ”. The weekend in September featured many fruitful debates on what the topic means to us as Christians today. In between the workshops the SCMers had prayer services, hikes, parties and bonfires.

In November the Lithuanian SCM hosted an international training course “Personal integrity and good leadership” by EYCE. The event was attended by 20 participants from 11 different countries and was reinforced by active Lithuanian SCMers and local speakers.

In December STEP (Student Evangelical Movement) did a project on Human Trafficking under the topic “What is your price?”. The goal of the project was twofold: on the one hand, to introduce the issue of human trafficking to students, to help them understand the origin and perpetuation of modern day slavery, and on the other to challenge young people (students) to think about where the value of life comes from and how much human life is worth. The project consisted of two parts: the first one was the campaign in the student center, where we put up a board with index cards with prices on them, and asked male students to pick one of our two student volunteers and say how much they would pay for a date with them – once they picked an index card with a price, they’d turn it around to find facts about human trafficking written on the back. About 50 people participated. The second and the central part was the conference, where 5 speakers spoke on the topics surrounding trafficking, sexuality and the worth of human life from a legal, psychological and theological perspective. There were about 40 people who were directly impacted by the conference and rated it with an overall “excellent” review. The entire project was led and coordinated by STEP volunteers, who had the opportunity to research on this topic, and think creatively on how to fight this problem in our society.

Planning, learning and inter-generational and partnership encounters

Total costs: 7,980.38 €
Dates: Feb 2016 and June 2016
Number of days: 6 working days together

In 2016, the WSCF-Europe Regional Committee and the staff met twice: in February in Finland (Helsinki) and in June in Germany (Hamburg). Both meetings were essential for planning ahead years 2016 and 2017 - our finances and our programmatic work. At both statutory meetings we also reflected on our internal team work with the help of a coach (Francois David Freschi) - to understand what in our work we enjoy, what we struggle with and to identify better ways of working together as a team towards our organisational goals. In addition, both meetings gave us the chance to connect with our local grassroots movements. We thank our local hosts Marita Mattila and Gisela Gross-Ikkache for helping us greatly with practical arrangements. A fantastic addition to both meetings were also meeting with our Senior Friends / alumnae Ilari Rantakari, Silke Lechner, Tanja Rolha, Henri Jarvinen and others. This inter-generational sharing inspires us as we meet our predecessors and discuss often the same challenges, but what is most important leaving us the feeling of continuous support.

Looking ahead to 2017

Capacity building

In the area of capacity building we shall continue to focus on practical skill development and knowledge exchange between young people. Our annual meeting for key volunteers in our movements organized in 2016 focused on developing their skills in volunteer management and retention. This helped them to maximise their presence and outreach through online communication. Many of WSCF alumnae are now providing this type of training on a pro bono basis. Intergenerational capacity building is what we will continue to do, so to empower young people to become engaged members of our communities, working for peace and justice.

Fundraising

Our challenges in the future are perhaps similar to those in many Christian communities: somewhat unpredictable funding sources and inactive members. We are planning to engage our audience in new ways through being more present, active and visible online and creating events with topics which are relevant for today’s Christian students. One way in which we want to engage new people is through music - we want to create a WSCF-E public Spotify playlist which can connect people in a different way. We will continue tackling the membership phenomenon also by growing our internal WSCF-E contacts database, and re-establishing links with alumnae and movements. In 2016 WSCF-Europe has been focusing on communication channels for Friends of WSCF-Europe; the next step is creating support mechanisms that enable our alumnae to help WSCF-Europe in all kinds of ways. In regard to funding sources, we have a long-term partnership with the Council of Europe and the European Commission, which generously contribute to our activities and administrative costs. However, as an NGO, we largely depend on donations, which is why we will continue developing the tools and structures to encourage individuals and organisations to donate for our cause. The regular donations system, established in late 2016, is the first step to achieving our goal.

Partnership strengthening around No Hate Speech topic

2017 is an exciting year for us, because, for the first time our multiple-event funding application was approved by the European Youth Foundation and the Council of Europe, which means that all our events are supported with their considerate aid. We are looking forward to organising these events and fostering a deep, diverse, and respectful dialogue. We want to make the most of our No Hate Speech campaign, which will hopefully engage new students and movements in our work. This campaign will kick off at the Staff and Officers meeting, and continue throughout the year.
Your support: THANK YOU!

We would like to thank all who helped us throughout the year with various practicalities. Your support makes WSCF-Europe happen! Your financial support keeps WSCF-Europe in action. Thank you for giving us the strength and independence to be a uniting voice for all people, empowering youth and bringing justice, peace and solidarity to our communities.
